

Atom Control Issue Pushed By Churchill

Direct Dickers With Russia Proposed

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
LONDON — (AP) — Winston Churchill, defying censure by his Laborite opponents in Britain's election campaign, repeated his plea last night for high level talks between the west and Russia on atomic bomb control.

Labor Prime Minister Clement Attlee promised to comment on the proposal in a political broadcast tonight.

The 75-year-old Tory leader reiterated his call for east-west atom control talks—outside the United Nations—in a final broadcast to the nation allotted to his party over the British Broadcasting Corporation.

Attacked by Laborite Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin for stepping into the international ring in his Edinburgh, Scotland, speech last Tuesday, Churchill defended himself.

"It is only by the agreement of the greatest powers," Churchill declared, "that security can be given to ordinary folk against the annihilating war with atomic or hydrogen bombs or bacteriological horrors."

Angered By Bevin

He angrily rejected Bevin's accusation that his suggestion was a political stunt.

"By this," Churchill growled, "he (Bevin) only showed how far his mind dwells below the true level of events."

Bevin—like United States officials—has taken the line that the place to negotiate atomic control is in the United Nations, or through normal diplomatic channels.

In reply to this, Churchill commented that "The United Nations cannot function while it is ventriloquist by the conflicting forces of the two worlds which are ranged against each other."

"Why should it be wrong for the British nation to think about the supreme question of life and death perhaps for the whole world at a time when there is a general election?" he asked. He added that only at election time could the British people let their wishes be known on international issues.

Danger Grows In Flood Area

Blizzard Whips Over Midwestern States

(By The Associated Press)
Flood dangers appeared growing more serious in the south and a blizzard whipped across some midwestern states today. The rest of the country had fair weather, with many areas reporting mild temperatures.

Rising floodwaters in three states threatened further evacuation of families to join the 35,000 persons already made homeless in the flood areas.

East Central Louisiana, southwestern Mississippi and Arkansas are the hardest hit by the floodwaters which have spilled out over millions of acres of land.

An estimated 23,000 are homeless in Arkansas. Other hundreds along the lower St. Francis river are in danger of the overflows.

The backwaters of a half dozen streams, tributaries of the Mississippi, have forced some 8,000 to flee their homes in 12 parishes (counties) in Louisiana and five counties in Mississippi. The Red Cross estimated that from 6,000 to 8,000 more may be driven from the lowlands by March 1.

A blast of icy air from Canada was pushing southward into the north central part of the country. It was moving into Nebraska, Iowa and Wisconsin today.

Emergency Board Is Next Step To Avert Rail Strike

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Truman is expected to create an emergency board next week to avert a threatened nationwide strike of railroad trainmen and conductors.

The National (Railway) Mediation Board advised the White House yesterday that the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Order of Railway Conductors have called a strike for Feb. 27.

Under the Railway Labor Act, the president can appoint a fact-finding board to investigate and report back within 30 days. The act also forbids a strike for another 30 days after the board reports.

The Trainmen and conductors are at odds with the railroads over demands for a 40-hour week without pay reductions for some 85,000 yardmen. They also are asking various contract improvements.

Wife, 50, Killed In Burned Home

Shotgun Blast Fatal To Hillsdale Woman

HILLSDALE, Mich. — (AP) — A coroner's jury met today to determine whether there was any foul play in the fatal shooting of Mrs. Thomas Shirley yesterday.

The 50-year-old housewife's body—shot through the arm and shoulder with a 12-gauge shotgun—was found late Friday in her burned home on Bird Lake near here.

Her husband, shop foreman for a Hillsdale trucking firm, went into the vacant house with a neighbor, Wayne Gilpin, and discovered Mrs. Shirley near death.

They rushed her to Hillsdale Community Health Center, but she was dead on admittance.

The Shirleys and their three sons had been living in the Bird Lake area since their home was burned out recently. They had been making repairs and were planning to move back into the charred building soon.

Sheriff Herman Kochendorfer said the woman might have been killed when the gun went off automatically as she moved it. He was checking the possibility that she was slain. Shirley said his wife had showed no signs of despondency.

Girl, 12 Missing At Iron Mountain, Hunted By Police

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mich. — (AP) — State police joined city and county authorities in a search today for 12-year-old Gwendolyn Marsh. The girl mysteriously disappeared late yesterday.

Hundreds of volunteers also joined the search as police broadcast a description of the child.

The girl was last seen at 5:30 p. m. Friday as she left the home of a playmate to return to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Marsh of 1621 Long Ave. in adjacent Kingsford.

Gwendolyn had gone from the Roosevelt school, where she is a seventh grade pupil, to the home of a friend, Carol Cunningham. After playing at the Cunningham home, she set out for her own home five blocks away.

The distraught parents said they were unable to account for her strange disappearance. They described her as a good student and well behaved. The father is a truck driver for a beer distributing agency.

Bank Bandits Leave Car And $27,851 Sack Near Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — With an abandoned car and an empty money bag their main clues, police and FBI officials today sought three men who fled from a daring bank holdup with $27,851 in cash.

Three suspects in the daylight robbery yesterday were released last night after questioning. The FBI broadcast an interstate look-out and local police checked highway traffic.

The abandoned car and the money bag were found only five blocks from the robbed branch of Hamilton National Bank, located near the Maryland-District of Columbia line.

Democrats Disagree As Truman Says He Can't Trim Budget

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Some Democrats disagreed today with President Truman's claim that it is impossible to cut federal spending enough to balance the budget.

Chairman George (D-Ga.) of the Senate finance committee told a reporter he thinks that if congress wanted to balance income and outgo it could get the job done.

"The most distressing part of the present federal economic situation is the unwillingness to face facts and bring about a reduction in federal expenditures," George said. "I not only think we could balance the budget but that we must balance it."

Mr. Truman said in his Jefferson-Jackson speech Thursday night that it is "out of the question" to make revenues meet expenses merely by slicing the $42,439,000,000 outlays he recommended for the year beginning July 1.

The president added that any talk about general tax cuts is just "rank political hypocrisy."

George, whose committee handles tax bills, said so far as he knows nobody is advocating a general tax reduction. But he added:

"We have some road blocks in our tax laws that ought to come out if they can be removed. We will strengthen the economy and the treasury should gain, rather than lose revenue."

Senator Byrd (D-Va.), a longtime economy advocate, sided with George in declaring that the budget could be balanced if congress was willing to take off its coat and do the job. Every year a number of lawmakers make known their intention of doing that, but this promise seldom bears fruit when the voting starts on annual money bills.

In a statement yesterday, Byrd attacked what he called the president's "embrance of chronic deficit spending."

The Virginia senator went further to assert that what Mr. Truman has labeled his "fair deal" program threatens to put the country on "a nonstop, high-speed highway to socialism."

He named "socialized medicine, socialized agriculture and extension of socialized housing" as three distinct threats in this direction.

Another Democrat, Senator McCarran of Nevada, yesterday proposed a cut of $1,000,000,000 in next year's European recovery program.

Calmy confessing to all the charges in the indictment against him, the 38-year-old telephone company executive asked a Hungarian Peoples' court for "a mild sentence."

He said he used his position as assistant vice president of the International Telephone and Telegraph company as a "cover for my espionage work."

Vogeler's unemotional plea of guilty opened the second day of the trial in which he and six others—a Briton and five Hungarians—are accused of espionage and sabotage.

Vogeler, who has been accountant for the Standard company, a subsidiary of I. T. & T., in Europe since 1945, declared he had been a U. S. Army intelligence officer since 1942. As an electrical engineer, he said, "espionage in the technical field is my specialty."

He testified that he had been instructed by U. S. Army intelligence officers in Vienna to dig up special information about radar production, rockets, uranium and oil deposits in Hungary and to get in touch with atom physicists and help them escape.

Collision Rips Two Crowded Trains In Half

Screaming Victims Trapped In Ruins

ROCKVILLE, CENTRE, N. Y. — (AP) — A crowded Long Island railroad commuter train sped through a stop signal last night and ripped head-on into another passenger train, killing 29 persons and injuring 100. Most of the injured were in critical condition.

It was metropolitan New York's worst railroad disaster, and the worst in the nation in four years.

The accident occurred on a makeshift siding, a single track handling two-way traffic.

Motorman Blamed

Jacob Kiefer, 55, of Baldwin, N. Y., motorman of the eastbound train, was arrested and charged with second degree manslaughter.

"He ran past the signal," Nassau county District Attorney Frank Gulotta said.

Motorman T. W. Markin of the westbound train was too dazed to be questioned. He was sent home suffering from shock.

The head cars of both electric trains were torn apart by the collision, which occurred at 10:35 p. m. (EST). The forward car of the eastbound train, loaded with home-going theatre crowds from Manhattan, was sheared down the middle. It toppled over, spewing mangled bodies and wreckage along the siding.

The dead, dying and injured were piled five deep atop one another. They sprawled grotesquely amid the twisted steel of the cars, the shattered glass and crushed seats.

The one-track siding was being used temporarily because of work on a grade-crossing project.

Over 1,000 Passengers

Police said the eastbound train ran through a red stop signal as it entered the siding. The first car had almost cleared the single track when the westbound train, coming down the double tracks on the other approach to the siding, crashed into it at a 15 degree angle.

The impact of the collision sheared the leading cars of both trains in half. The steel sides of the two coaches were torn and intermingled.

The two trains carried some 1,000 passengers, many of whom

Crash Victims Back In Texas

Limping Plane Brings 9 B-36 Survivors

BY WALTER P. BOSWELL and WILLIAM C. BARNARD

FORT WORTH, Tex. — (AP) — A crippled plane limped into Carswell Air Force base last night, carrying nine survivors of a B-36 that crashed off the western Canadian coast Monday.

Today the survivors begin telling their story to a special board of inquiry, even as a desperate search continues for five men who also parachuted from the doomed giant bomber and have not been found.

The Air Force C-54 which brought the nine back to the arms of the happy relatives at their home base here landed with the number four right outboard engine feathered. The engine was cut out over Albuquerque on the 10-hour flight from McChord Air Force Base, Tacoma, Wash., because of an oil leak.

The remaining five crew members of the lost B-36 have not been found.

Clues that some of them at least are on Princess Royal Island off north British Columbia coast include a blood-spattered patch in the snow, tree-snapped parachutes, and a report of a pistol shot heard Thursday.

Gales up to 70 miles an hour yesterday kept planes grounded and whipped the water about rugged Princess Royal Island to a creamy froth.

Miners Mad, But White House May End Coal Crisis

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Truman's fact-finders reported today that a soft coal settlement this week-end is "very doubtful" but the White House decided against any further action at least until Monday.

Charles G. Ross told reporters, after the presidential board had seen Mr. Truman, that the chief executive will make no move over the week-end.

The decision apparently stemmed, at least in part, from strong hope on the part of David L. Cole, chairman of the three-man board, that the miners will go back to the pits in that time.

"All in all," Cole told newsmen, "the general atmosphere leads us to believe that a great many miners will go back to work Monday."

Diggers May Return

Cole based that optimism principally on the language of a new back-to-work plea addressed to the United Mine Workers last night by John L. Lewis.

Lewis told the men to back "forthwith" and Cole said the call was "couched in different language" from a previous one which 370,000 miners have disregarded.

The board chairman said one reason why he thinks the miners will go back to work is that they now believe their local leaders really want them to do so.

Ross, discussing the board's report with reporters after the fact-finders left Mr. Truman's office, said the chief executive still has no intention of asking for power to seize the mines.

Last night a grim "no progress" report from the board had heightened prospects of court action by the White House.

Apparently feeling that such action might include a request for a contempt citation against the United Mine Workers, union leader John L. Lewis issued an urgent new order to the miners late yesterday to get back to work "forthwith," as instructed by a federal court.

Federal conciliation director Cyrus Ching commented: "I don't think that message could be misunderstood by anybody." But the miners' reaction was cool.

Typical retorts went this way: "The miners are still madder than hell" and the Lewis order "won't do any good" without a new contract to replace the one which ran out last June 30.

That left even more clouded the question of who is responsible for the miners' defiance of the ten-day court order banning a strike.

Wounded in his right side and arm, Maxie Sterns, 35, known gambler with a long criminal record, was in serious condition in receiving hospital.

Assaults apparently crept up on Sterns as he sat in his parked car on East Congress street in the downtown district, police said.

Nine bullet holes were found in a door of the car. One shot tore a gaping hole in Sterns' right side.

At headquarters police questioned several friends and associates of the wounded mobster. In keeping with gangland's code, Maxie himself wasn't talking.

Moses Joseph, 40, described as a gaming syndicate associate of Sterns, told the wounded man to the hospital.

Police said they had reason to suspect a plot of rival gangsters was at the bottom of the shooting.

Sterns, with a record for robbery, assault and gambling, was described as an associate of Jack George, mobster who was slain three weeks ago. George's body was found trussed with wire in the trunk compartment of his car.

Auto Industry Displays New Cars In Chicago

Big Show Expected To Draw Half Million

By DAVID J. WILKIE
Associated Press Automotive Editor

CHICAGO — (AP) — The nation's auto industry puts its newest model vehicles on display today at the biggest auto show since pre-war days.

Some 300 model passenger cars built by 19 manufacturers are expected to draw nearly a half million visitors to the 42nd Annual Chicago Automobile Show. Opening at two o'clock this afternoon in Chicago's International Amphitheater, the show will run through Feb. 26.

Besides passenger cars there are trucks, trailers, auto bodies, cutaway engines and accessories ranging from cigarette lighters to automatic transmissions.

With one exception all the vehicles at the show already have been shown by dealers throughout the country. The exception is Kaiser-Frazer's three new lines, re-styled Kaisers and Frazers, and a yet unnamed smaller vehicle.

The K-F show models are hand-built but the Kaisers and Frazers are scheduled for assembly line production next month and the smaller low-priced model in June.

Big Year Ahead

The show is sponsored by the Chicago Automobile Trade Association, but it is getting more than usual support from the various manufacturers. Most of the manufacturers have factory representatives on hand to extol the merits of their various makes.

Although the industry established new sale records last year, in the sale of more than 5,800,000 vehicles, most factory representatives are talking about more records this year.

Typical is the statement of H. C. Doss, sales vice-president of Nash. "Our sales during 1950 promise to be the highest in the 48-year history of Nash and its predecessor company," he said.

Among the unusual models showing at the display is a small 84-inch wheelbase convertible Nash may put into production to sell for less than $1,000 and an experimental leopard skin lined convertible built by Cadillac for show purposes. Authoritative estimates give it a $35,000 price tag.

Gambler Wounded By Shot From Ambush

DETROIT — (AP) — Police were alerted today to a possible war in the gambling rackets after a hoodlum's ambush shooting last night.

Wounded in his right side and arm, Maxie Sterns, 35, known gambler with a long criminal record, was in serious condition in receiving hospital.

Assaults apparently crept up on Sterns as he sat in his parked car on East Congress street in the downtown district, police said.

Nat'l Guard Ranks Opened To Negroes

LANSING—(P)—Governor Williams yesterday instructed the Michigan National Guard to open its ranks and officerships to negroes.

Technically, his order forbade discrimination against anyone because of "race, color or creed," but the only known Guard discrimination has been against negroes.

The National Guard has one all-negro battalion, Detroit's 127th combat engineers, with 300 officers and men, but it has previously refused to mix negroes and Caucasians in the same outfit. "Discrimination in our armed forces," Williams said, "is contrary to everything for which the Michigan National Guard has fought valiantly and gloriously in battle."

"We do not ask a man's color or race or religion when we send him out to face death or injury for the safety of our homes in time of war. We should follow the same policy in times of peace."

Cut Dental Decay By Brushing Teeth

CHICAGO—Tooth decay can be cut 50 per cent or 60 per cent by brushing the teeth immediately after eating. Studies showing this are reported by Dr. L. S. Fosdick, professor of chemistry at Northwestern University Dental school here, to the Journal of the American Dental Association.

The favorable results were obtained with a neutral, unmedicated tooth paste containing dicalcium phosphate as the abrasive, or rubbing, agent. Since the results were good with this dentifrice, it is possible, Dr. Fosdick states, the type of dentifrice and abrasive are not important. A positive statement on this, however, must await results from studies now being made with two other types of dentifrice. One of these two contains soap and calcium carbonate. The other has an antiseptic in it.

Nickell Shows Fine Movies

Canada's Uranium Strike Pictured

Starting in the Copper Country's Keweenaw peninsula, Walter P. Nickell took his audience on a naturalist's tour in his lecture here last night. The lecture, fourth in the Hiawatha Wildlife Series, was titled "From Keweenaw to the Atlantic."

Wildflowers, birds and other animals in natural color shared interest with waterfalls and scenery of breathtaking beauty. The wildlife pictured included the unusual and rarely seen as well as the more familiar.

Of particularly timely interest was the sequence which showed the site of the first discovery of uranium ore in this section of North America, that on the Lake Superior shore northwest of Sault Ste. Marie. Included were shots of the pitchblende vein in the rock near the shore and workers operating a diamond drill rig in exploratory work. The shooting of a multiple blast in breaking out the rock was shown. Among the men shown at work was the modern prospector, Campbell who made the discovery.

Another unusual sequence was one made in a limestone cave that revealed the beauty of the formations met with by the cave crawlers.

The final lecture of the series which is sponsored locally by the University of Michigan Extension service and the Wolverine Conservation association will be on Monday, March 13. Edward M. Brigham, director of the Kingman Museum of Natural History, Battle Creek, will be the lecturer. His lecture is titled "Land of Rushing Waters."

It is estimated that about six tons of coal are used directly or indirectly to manufacture an average motor car.

MUCC Office Has Heavy Load

No Increase In Work During 1949

The Escanaba office of the Michigan Unemployment Compensation commission, had an extremely large volume of business during the year 1949, Whitney R. Dixon, manager, revealed today.

Over 50,000 reception contacts were made at the local office and itinerant points served, which include Manistique, Rapid River, Gladstone and Rock. From January through December, a total of 50,844 claims were filed, of which 5,743 were initial claims. Contested claims which were adjudicated totaled 911. Most of these claims arose on disqualifications for voluntary leaving and discharges for misconduct.

The Escanaba office, according to Mr. Dixon, started the new determination operations and the actual payment of checks during 1948. As a result, initial monetary determinations allowing some benefits were made on 3,219 initial claims in 1949.

New registrations for work during the same year totaled 2,852, and a substantial portion of these applicants were claimants for unemployment benefits. In addition to these new applications above, a large number of inactive applications were activated during the year.

Part of the services offered by the local office is in employment counseling. During 1949, 173 were given counseling interviews. Industrial service assistance was offered to many employers in Delta and Schoolcraft counties in 1949, through 423 employer visits made by the staff.

Placement activities during 1949 were somewhat lower than the previous year, as a total of only 851 non-agricultural openings were received in the local office. In response to these openings, 1,481 applicants were referred and a total of 851 were placed in the various jobs.

Dixon concluded with the statement that 1949 had showed no improvement over 1948 in work opportunities, and a higher unemployment load.

Babson Talks Of Things To Come

Predicts Wonderful Events In Future

By ROGER W. BABSON
BABSON PARK, Fla.—Once each year I like to write about things to come as I see them. These suggestions are not original with me, however. They are based on talks which I have had with leading scientists and inventors.

1. It is believed that experiments will soon start in connection with individuals flying as do eagles, gulls and carrier pigeons. An alloy of magnesium and titanium should enable an individual to carry a very light engine and wings. Furthermore, new powerful gases being developed would enable a very small light turbine engine to lift and propel an individual. This person may be obliged to wear a special suit containing a light gas. It is true that nothing of the kind has yet been developed, but it is on the drawing boards. Far greater speeds for commercial planes are definitely assured. Within five years I expect to fly from New York to Los Angeles in two hours.

2. Partly Overcoming Gravity
Considering the millions of possible alloys which have not yet been gravity tested, it is possible that someone will stumble on to an alloy which serves as a partial insulator for gravity. By the use of such for stair-treads, it would require no more effort to walk upstairs than to walk on the level. In addition to such a discovery being a great boon to those with heart trouble, it will be welcomed by all merchants who have great difficulty in getting customers to go up even a few steps, to a mezzanine floor.

3. Better And Cheaper Foods
Chemists are making headway in preparing sugar, proteins and yeasts from small trees, and other food direct from grasses, water, and sunshine. These experiments are to "pass" the cow and the steer, both of which are now very inefficient manufacturers of milk and beef. The whole study of diet is in a most elementary stage. We will have much more tasty and nourishing food direct from the sun of minerals, sunshine, water and air, at much lower prices. We will buy peaches ground up, skin, flesh and seed; meats and fish ground up, bones, body and skin; while lobsters will be sold claws, meat and tamale all ground into a delicious paste suitable for lobster bisque or thermidor. These preparations will be more tasty and nourishing and sell for less money because of the reduced labor involved.

4. The power of the mind over matter has been emphasized by certain religious organizations; but only recently has such power been tested in laboratories. I am especially interested in the work of Professor J. B. Rhine of Duke University, Durham, North Carolina. His experiments definitely prove that the mind acting upon a plant or planted seeds can have a direct effect in hastening or retarding growth. The Fonda Horse, three miles south of Richmond, Virginia is worthy of study.

5. Watch the Plastic Industry
The use of plastics has, as yet, hardly been scratched. Women are carrying plastic bags and are wearing plastic raincoats; but other plastic materials, including rugs and dress goods, are about ready for the market. The purpose of these is to entirely eliminate weaving by rolling out the goods from a liquid the same as paper is now made. Leather shoes, which now require about one hundred separate operations, will someday largely be discarded for quickly molded shoes. Such plastic shoes should stand up longer, be more beautiful, requiring only 10 workers instead of 100, and will sell for half present prices.

6. I visualize a great movement toward church consolidations. Many readers may not class such a movement as "miraculous," as some of the above developments, but it will be. No wealth, inventions, or new products will make the world a better place in which to live unless accompanied by a spiritual awakening. All these can be used either to construct or to destroy according to the peoples' religious faith. The first step to such a spiritual awakening will be Church consolidations and a universal religion.

Human Growth Film Approved For Rural Schools Of County

The Delta County Rural School Board Members association, meeting last night in Escanaba township hall, approved the purchase of a film on human growth to be shown to the students of rural schools in the county.

The film has been shown to PTA groups in the county, where it has received favorable comment from the parents.

After viewing the film, the school board members and superintendents discussed the subject of human growth and sex education as essential in completing the general educational theme of home and family living. This discussion was led by Dr. William C. Harrison, Delta-Menominee health district director, and the association members were almost unanimous in their approval of the film for showing in the rural schools of the county.

Other business before the association included the review of school district budgets and an area studies bill.

Co-Pilot Makes Love To Quiet Wild Blonde In Washington Plane

WASHINGTON (AP)—A battered co-pilot who told of making fervent love to a hysterical blonde passenger in a wildly tossing airplane fretted today over how to explain to his wife.

The small plane, which had started on a routine chartered flight from New York to Florida, made a wobbly emergency landing here yesterday after what Co-Pilot T. C. Sallee described as a hectic 15-minute struggle with the kicking, lunging woman. Sallee said he had to kiss the tall, powerfully built blonde to quiet her. Fingering the scratches on his face, he added: "These will have to be explained to my wife. I hope she understands."

The woman—identified as Miss Willie Jane Frost, 38, of Coral Gables, Fla., and Los Angeles—was the only passenger aboard. Immediately after the landing she was hurried to a hospital. Attendants refused to discuss her condition.

The 32-year-old Sallee, who flew on a round-the-world trip with the late Bill Odom, described yesterday's flight as "the worst in my career." This is the story

Mrs. Gasman, 77, Dies Unexpectedly Of Heart Attack

Mrs. Francis Gasman, 77, senior member of a prominently known Escanaba family, died unexpectedly of a heart attack at 11:15 this morning shortly after she was admitted to St. Francis hospital.

Mrs. Gasman was born in Watertown, Wis., August 29, 1872 and came to Escanaba 32 years ago from Bark River. She was a member of St. Joseph's church and of the Altar society.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Leslie Buckley, and three sons, Raymond H., Harold and Robert all of Escanaba; 10 grandchildren; one brother, John O. Loeffler, Minneapolis; and one sister, Mrs. Emma Breen Johnson of Milwaukee.

The body was taken to the Alto funeral home where friends of the family may call beginning Sunday evening. Services will be held Tuesday morning at St. Joseph's church and burial will be in Holy Cross cemetery.

In frying chicken many cooks have excellent results when they keep the skillet fat very hot when the chicken is dropped in, then cover the pan and lower the heat to steam. The cover may be removed for the last five or ten minutes of cooking and the chicken crisped.

Celery salt may be used in many dishes—soups, salad dressings, stuffing, egg dishes. To make this flavoring celery seed is ground very fine and thoroughly mixed with table salt.

Are Bay de Noc Walleyes Doomed? Commercial Take Doubled In 1949 As Fishermen Rush To Delta County

Recent proposals for special legislation to protect the walleyes in certain designated waters of Delta county were made at a time when the commercial take of walleyes was being doubled within one year.

Are the walleyes of Little and Big Bay de Noc doomed unless steps are taken to control over-fishing?

Delta county persons whose livelihood is directly concerned with the success or failure of the annual "walleye crop" are alarmed by the possibility the walleye will be dangerously depleted.

Catch Is Doubled

If this should occur the now-thriving commercial fishing industry would be hard hit and the tourist and resort industry would suffer. For the walleye is a fine food fish and a good game fish, and is sought both by the commercial fisherman and the sports fisherman.

Michigan Department of Conservation statistics on the commercial catch of walleyes at Delta county ports reveals the basis for this apprehension among local residents. The report, covering the years 1944-49, inclusive, is as follows:

Year	Pounds of Walleyes
1944	41,349
1945	18,866
1946	62,415
1947	237,453
1948	467,119
1949	824,986*

*Does not include Dec. 1949, catch which will not materially affect the year's total.

The Walleye Rush

Beginning in 1947, the year the walleyes began to appear in great numbers in Bays de Noc and northern Green bay waters, an immediate increase is noted in the number of commercial fishing licenses issued for Delta county ports—with a growing number of licenses to fishermen who were not residents of Delta county.

Conservation department figures graphically reveal this rush of fishermen to Delta county ports to reap a part of the golden walleye crop.

Commercial fishing craft licensed to operate within a fifty mile radius of Delta county ports totaled 72 in 1946. By 1949 the total had jumped to 311.

Of this 311 licenses, however, only 231 were issued to residents of Delta county. This means that 80 fishermen who are residents of other counties and of Wisconsin moved into local waters, legally licensed to do so, of course, attracted by the good fishing here.

Cause and Effect

Are the walleyes so abundant that the large catches only prove how abundant they are? Or are the large catches the result of over-fishing?

Fishermen say there are now more walleyes in northern Green bay waters than in many years past, but some fishermen are also convinced that if the take continues intensively for a few years the walleyes may be seriously depleted. Gill net fishermen point to the trap netters (who moved in last year from Lake Huron) as the cause of the startling increase in walleye production. The trap netters with equal logic, point to the general expansion of the commercial fishing industry locally as responsible, at least in part, for the larger fish production.

It is reasonable to assume that certain natural conditions caused the walleyes to become abundant. This abundance attracted more fishermen. The situation will become serious as the fish decline and the large number of fishermen compete for the dwindling catch.

Under such circumstances it is possible the walleyes will be "cleaned out", say those who propose special restrictions to save the walleyes.

Production Goes Up

The U. S. Fish & Wildlife Service records for walleyes and other principal species taken in Michigan waters of Green bay shows that new high production records were set in 1948 on walleyes, herring and whitefish.

Whitefish production in 1929 was 1,140,000 pounds compared to 3,066,000 pounds in 1948; herring was 396,000 pounds in 1929 to 2,668,000 pounds in 1948; and walleye production jumped from 27,000 pounds in 1929 to 572,000 pounds in 1948.

Lake trout and yellow perch production declined only slightly, from 182,000 to 178,000 on trout, and 95,000 to 66,000 on yellow perch.

In general these figures indicate either that fish are now more plentiful than they were in 1929, or fishing methods have improved and the number of fishing outfits have increased.

The Fishing Centers

Leading commercial fishing

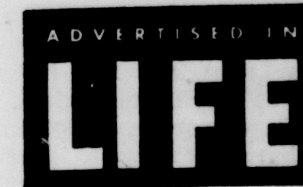

port locality in Delta county is the Garden Peninsula, with its three ports of Fairport, Fayette and Garden. There are 148 commercial fishing licenses issued for 50-mile port radius fishing in that locality. This compares with 34 licenses for the three ports only five years ago.

Escanaba is the leading single fishing port in the county, with 78 licenses in 1949. Five years ago there were but 13 commercial fishing licenses in Escanaba.

Other fishing ports and the number of licenses in 1949 are as follows: Gladstone 27, Nahma 45, Rapid River 10 and Stonington 6. Many of these fishermen have joined with Delta county residents interested in the tourist and resort business in proposing a six-point program for control of net fishing.

This includes the limiting of trap nets to a depth of eight feet, puts a 50-foot limit to the depth that any net can be set, and designates certain areas in both Little and Big Bay de Noc where no nets can be set during walleye trolling season.

New Phone System At Daily Press Plant

EFFECTIVE today, the Escanaba Daily Press is utilizing an improved telephone system that will provide better facilities for direct communications to either the business office or the newsrooms.

All calls to the editorial department, the Press newsrooms, will be placed on a new two-line circuit, designated by the single telephone number, 35. Calls to the business office, including the advertising and circulation departments, will be on a separate two-line circuit, designated by the traditional Daily Press telephone number, 692.

The new system eliminates the switchboard at the Daily Press plant and provides faster telephone service to the particular department or individual that the caller is seeking to contact.

It is, of course, important to remember that the news room no longer can be reached by calling the traditional Daily Press number, 692. This number is now reserved solely for the business office, including the circulation and advertising departments. To contact the news department or any individual employed in the Daily Press news rooms, simply call 35.

In addition to eliminating the switchboard, the new system provides four lines to the Daily Press plant instead of three as in the past. Each of the two lines coming in to the news department can be answered by any of the seven telephone extensions in the editorial department and the same is true of the two lines coming into the business office, in which five telephone extensions will handle incoming calls on the two lines.

Overorganization Quite A Problem

ALL of the panel discussions on various aspects of child welfare at the children and youth conference here Thursday night dwelled at some length on the problem of overorganization. A majority of the more than 100 Delta county residents who attended the conference agreed that the numerous organizations that exist make too heavy demands upon the time of parents, with the result that mothers and dads have too little time remaining to devote to the guidance of their children at home.

Paradoxically, the conferees also agreed that organizations are necessary to promote and support such worthwhile causes as Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Campfire Girls, churches, PTA units, service clubs and the host of other groups devoted to improvement of community interests. Certainly the community is better because of these organizations.

How then to meet the problem? The answer obviously lies with individual parents. Mothers and fathers must guard against accepting active memberships in more organizations than they can safely afford their time without jeopardizing their home and family responsibilities. The answer is a broader base for civic, church, fraternal organizations, with more people joining in this work to relieve those already overburdened.

We recall the creation of a fictional organization here a few months ago called the "No" club. The club was in fact nonexistent. It had no officers, no dues, no rules, no meetings. The sole purpose was to set aside Friday evenings as a night when members would remain at home with their families. We regret that the idea failed to take hold, simply because so many of the "No" club members were unable to resist demands upon their time on Friday evenings.

Quotas Would Curb Potato Surpluses

THE folly of combining farm price supports with ineffective production controls is sharply highlighted by the government's plan to throw away 50,000,000 bushels of potatoes it expects will be left over from the 1949 crop.

Secretary of Agriculture Brannan says the department already has bought 20,000,000 bushels and will have to acquire perhaps another 70,000,000. Only about 40,000,000 of this total can be disposed of usefully.

The purchases are made under the program requiring the government to support potato prices at 6 per cent of the so-called parity level—a price plane designed to give farmers adequate buying power.

The government gets rid of surplus potatoes in several ways: It gives them to school lunch programs, foreign and domestic relief agencies and government units which may trade them for strategic materials needed in this country. It also tells potatoeats to bargain prices to exporters, to alcohol manufacturers and livestock producers (for food).

The National Potato Council, representing the industry, thinks the extra 50,000,000 bushels should be made available to industrial users. But Brannan says plants won't take them unless the government pays the freight. The department can save $15,000,000 in freight charges by dumping the potatoes instead.

Even if that saving is made, the government will lose $80,000,000 to $100,000,000 on the 1949 crop. It lost around $225,000,000 in 1948, including $25,000,000 just for shipping surpluses to points where they could be used.

Currently the department tries to limit potato output by restricting the number of acres that can be planted. But this isn't effective because many farmers simply plant their rows closer together, apply fertilizer and insecticides more freely, and come up with more potatoes than ever.

Brannan, joined by his predecessor, Senator Anderson of New Mexico, has asked congress to establish marketing quotas as the only sensible curb on runaway production. Such quotas specifically limit the number of bushels a farmer may produce. They usually are accompanied by penalties for failure to stay within bounds.

If congress is not ready to impose workable controls, it would be better to remove price supports from potatoes altogether. For, as presently operated, the program discredits the entire support plan for a wide range of crops. And it obviously means an intolerable waste of food, money, and productive energies.

Lewis Asks 200-Day Work Year Pledge

JOHN L. LEWIS reportedly has shifted from a $15 a day wage demand and a 35c per ton royalty payment to the miners' health and welfare fund to a 200-day guaranteed work year as his prime objective in the current dispute with the coal mine operators.

Presumably Lewis has injected the 200-day work year feature into the negotiations as a basic demand but has indicated a willingness to moderate his wage and royalty payment requests. Probably the court order barring Lewis from seeking a union shop, union-controlled welfare fund, the "able and willing" work clause and "memorial period holidays" prompted the union leader to bring the 200-day job pledge into the list of demands to improve his bargaining position with the mine operators.

The 200-day work year request normally would be a reasonable demand for a labor union seeking to gain work stability and undoubtedly the nation as a whole would benefit if such a policy could safely be established in the coal industry. Unfortunately, the periodic strikes in the coal mines and the constantly increasing coal prices that have resulted from higher wage contracts have caused a sharp reduction in the coal market. No longer can there be any assurance that the market can sustain 400,000 coal miners on a guaranteed 200-day work year. The responsibility for this condition lies primarily with the miners themselves or, perhaps more accurately, with the miners' union. They have no one to blame but themselves for pricing their product out of a substantial part of the fuel and power market.

LIGHTS FROM KITCHEN WINDOWS

Toward the end of day comes the time when shafts of golden light slant from kitchen windows. Traveling through the countryside one sees them while dusk is dropping its blanket and colored afterglow still gleams on mountain heights. From farm homes along valley roads, from rolling upland hills, there are lights from the windows. Men pruning apple orchards or chopping wood on hillside woodlots shoulder their tools as chore time approaches and head toward the golden streamers that are banners of home.

In farm kitchens across a nation there is peace and security. Approximately half of our country's farms now have electricity; but whether from the magic of science or from the shining glass globes of kerosene lamps, the golden paths stretch across farmyards. The country-man comes in and gets his lantern for doing the chores. He sees and smells the preparations for supper. From time to time as he does the milking, feeds the stock and beds them down for the night, he glances up at those dappled pennants of light that mean a haven of peace in a world of snarling confusion.

Through the generations men have watched for that gleam. Long years ago pioneers came from the woodland after hunting trips and a humble home in a clearing welcomed them by its lighted window. Out on the prairies, in the sandy stretches of southern pineplands and in the valleys among north-eastern mountains men have turned contentedly toward home after business with the outside world, secure in the knowledge that a welcoming part of light would stretch toward their feet as they reached their homesteads. There is nothing spectacular or pretentious about the beacons from kitchen windows. They are the banners of homes where men and women, boys and girls, have found part of the meaning in the experience we call life.—By Haydn Pearson.

Indo-China's Red Scholar

BY PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—American officials who have come in contact with Ho Chi Minh—just recognized by Russia and Communist China as head of the Viet Nam (Indo-China) Democratic Republic rate him as wise, shrewd and tough. The whole struggle against world communism now seems centered about this little-known Oriental revolutionist.

He is rated as a scholar and philosopher, though his education is indefinite. He speaks French, English, Russian, Chinese and a number of the languages and dialects of Indo-China and Malaya. He is a Moscow-trained professional revolutionist who has operated all through Southeast Asia, from Siam to China. He has been jailed by the British and Chinese.

His courage is considerable. The French thought they had him surrounded in a four-block area in Hanoi a year or so ago. They threw a cordon around the area and thought he could not escape. He shaved off his chin whiskers, dressed as a coolie and pulled a rishsha bearing two fat women right through the French troops.

From the best intelligence reports available, Ho Chi Minh is not his real name. He was born as Nguyen Tat Thanh in a village near Vinh, French Indo-China, in 1892 or 1894. He was the son of a school teacher and a rebel against the French. His sister and brother were both jailed by the French colonial authorities.

SENT TO CHINA BY MOSCOW

In 1923 he was sent as a French Colonial delegate to an International Farmers' Conference in Moscow. Two years later, under the name of Song Mon Cho he was sent by Moscow to Canton, China, as interpreter for the Russian agents Gallen and Borodin. At this time Chiang Kaishek's Kuomintang was in close alliance with Moscow.

Ho lived at the Soviet Embassy, sometimes using the name of Ly Thuy. He recruited Indo-Chinese for a new nationalist society known as Thanh Nien, and saw that they were trained in military and revolutionary tactics at the Whampoa school. And he sent a lieutenant, Le Hong Phong, to Moscow for higher training as his successor.

Then in 1927 the Kuomintang broke with the Russians and Ho made his way back to Moscow. Next year he was sent to Siam, where he had considerable success in organizing the Annamese colony of some 30,000 for revolutionary activity. He went to Hong Kong and in 1930 organized the first openly avowed Indo-Chinese Communist party.

He got small subsidies from Moscow, believed to have been about 5000 francs a month. But it was enough to organize revolution. The French were able to put down the uprising, with considerable bloodshed. But Ho's activities came to the attention of the British. In June, 1931, they put him in Hong Kong prison for a two-year stay.

DEDICATED TO BREWING UNREST

From his release in 1933 until 1940, Ho kept up his revolutionary organization, working from Hong Kong, Canton and Macao. For the first three years he directed a fight against French imperialism. Then, when there was a popular front government in France, he changed tactics and cooperated with the colonial government for reform.

In May, 1941, Ho changed his Communist party organization into the Viet Minh—the League for Independence of Viet Nam. At first these Chinese supported him, believing he was ready to fight the Japs. Then the Chinese grew suspicious and jailed him for 18 months. The Chinese proclaimed a new Republic of Viet Nam under Truong Boi Cong. But when Ho was released from prison he became a member of the cabinet.

Ho broke with this movement in 1944, however, and with 700 guerrilla followers returned to Northern Indo-China. He made several trips back to China, and on one of them persuaded American Office of Strategic Service agents to drop arms to his forces.

Instead of using these arms to fight Japs, Ho saved them to fight the French. And when the Japanese finally left the country at the end of the war, Ho was able to get their arms, too. Some 10,000 Jap deserters also joined his forces, giving him a hard corps of fighters. He seized control of the radio, and so gained control of the country before the French forces could come back. So the French recognized him.

From March to December, 1945, Ho was in Paris. The French coalition government at that time included the Communists, and Ho made many agreements with the French. But the Kremlin apparently told him that they did not want stability. When Ho returned to Indo-China, one of his first deeds was to order the massacre of several thousand Europeans. He has been in revolt against the French ever since.

A. In the American idiom, such statements are treated as if they were questions, thus: "You didn't bring your bag today (did you)?" The natural answer is: No (I did not). "You left your bag home today (didn't you)?" The answer is: Yes, (I did).

This is a usage that puzzles many of our foreign-born. (Remember the old song, "Yes, we have no bananas.")

The same rule applies to all -in-law relationships.

Tacoma: Is there such a word as "leotard," and how is it pronounced?—H. V. K.

A. A leotard is the typical costume worn by circus acrobats, trapeze performers, etc. The American College Dictionary describes it thus: "A close-fitting, sleeveless garment with a low neck and tights, worn by acrobats, dancers, etc." The origin of the word is uncertain. Pronounce it: LEE-uh-tahrd.

CHANGING TIMES—The troubled times in the nation's coal mining industry may be a passing phase—that will mark the passing of mining methods as we now know them.

That has been the experience in many other industries where tight labor union organizations look upon management with complete and unqualified distrust. New and improved production methods, necessary to continue operations, sometimes bring drastic reductions in employment.

Mechanization often comes as a natural step, at other times it is evolved to meet specific problems other than those of labor trouble, and sometimes labor's refusal to produce results in mechanized production that make it possible to relegate labor to a less important place.

TRIMMING THE ORE—Coal mining now requires a large volume of hand labor. So it was also at one time in Escanaba in loading ore boats. The ore trimmers numbered in the hundreds and had the strongest union of any labor group. Mechanization has thinned the ranks of the ore trimmers, and boats are now loaded in far less time with far fewer men.

John P. Norton, Escanaba Daily Press publisher, writing a few years ago for his "Early Escanaba Days" reported: "Escanaba's 'labor front' in the early history of the town was not as peaceful and serene as it has been in recent years, if the columns of the Iron Port truly reflect conditions that maintained through the years of its publication. The spring of 1884 was marked by a 'disturbance among the ore trimmers.' The Port said: 'The city was frightened or pretended to be. Two men proposed to trim ore cargoes—two men that had not heretofore engaged in that business—and there were threats of 'doing them up,' of burning them out and raising the old serpent generally. The city is again tranquil. The two men abandoned their plan, the many 'old trimmers' hired the band and had a torchlight parade and the old gangs under the old bosses will trim the ships at the old rate of four cents a ton.'

"The Port rejoices in the maintenance of the rate. It makes a difference of some fifteen or eighteen thousand dollars a season in the earnings of the men whether the rate is three cents or four cents—and four is not too much; but the Port is ashamed of some of the methods employed to maintain it: of the fact that there are men who will contemplate and threaten murder and arson as remedies for what they consider a grievance."

WHAT THEY CALL IT—Just as the Escanaba Iron Port back in 1884 was to tell the ore trimmers what it thought of its methods, so the newspapers today have words of warning to John L. Lewis and the United Mine Workers.

But the Iron River Reporter a few months ago became involved in a friendly discussion of the terms "scooter" and "scooter" in referring to Chicago and North Western trains that once operated between Escanaba and Iron River. The trains are now off the run because of the national coal shortage, and the Michigan Public Service Commission says the train between Escanaba and Powers need not be restored. T. M. Cassidy, who recently retired as superintendent of the C. & N. W. railroad's Peninsula Division, took exception to the term "scooter" in describing the trains. It was a legitimate full-fledged train drawn by a standard locomotive, not a "scooter," said Cassidy.

Says the Iron River Reporter: "West Siders hopeful of retaining the convenient services afforded by the train hope Mr. Cassidy has not heard that some who hear the train whistle in each midnight call it the 'hoot-nanny,' orthodox steam equipment notwithstanding."

WHAT ECONOMY—This has to do with automobiles, not trains. The time is close at hand when motorists must purchase their new 1950 auto license plates—we mean plate.

For the state of Michigan still insists that two plates are extravagant and it is saving the taxpayers' money by giving out only one license plate. This will be attached to the rear of the auto, so that pedestrians who are run down will be able to get the license number, if they are conscious.

The wartime steel shortage was held reason enough to reduce from two to one the auto license plates issued to motorists. Both the war and steel shortage are ended.

The failure to restore the two-plate issue is like a few other services "temporarily" cancelled during the war, including daily milk deliveries and two-pants suits.

Too Much Power

Dear Editor:

A new federal law which was recently signed by the president gives the secretary of defense far greater powers than he possessed in the past, especially in the field of budgetary matters. In the view of some experts, these powers might be used to effect, even if by indirection, a merging of the armed forces.

In this regard, it is important to review some testimony given to the house armed services committee by Ferdinand Eberstadt, who headed a Hoover commission task force which made an exhaustive inquiry into the workings of the national military establishment. Mr. Eberstadt said: "The testimony and recommendations presented to our committee were practically unanimous against merging the three military departments into a single department. Of the 245 witnesses who appeared before us only two or three recommended merger of the three departments. Our committee recommended against such a merger."

The new law also provides for the appointment of a chairman for the joint chiefs of staff, who will be the senior military officer of the nation. Speaking of this idea, Herbert Hoover said: "It places too much power in any military officer and thus checks the vital civilian control of the armed services. With such rank and power, his voice to the country can override the responsible civilian officials. My belief is that this provision is not only unworkable but dangerous to the country."

All of us want greater efficiency and economy in the armed forces. Those who urged the passage of this law undoubtedly had the best of motives, and their efforts were spurred by continued dissension within the military establishment, and by disruptive inter-service rivalries. However, the operation of the law must now be watched with great care, to see if it was actually the right approach to a very important problem. We must be everlastingly on guard against measures, no matter how well intentioned, that would place excessive power in the hands of individuals and, which, in time, might lead to a Prussian type of military system.

No Political Merger

Dear Editor:

Latest reports from the South are that the so-called Dixiecrats are as cool as ever to talk of a merger with the Republican party. The move has been urged by some men on the ground the two groups have much in common.

Despite their long string of reverses in presidential elections the Republicans don't appear in any mood to yield their identity to a new party. The same problem of ancient loyalties and distrust crops up wherever a new alignment would force a change in party patterns.

American geography and history seem to be ranged against logic on this issue. And so both big parties will probably keep on being what they have been—catchalls that try to be all things to all men.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — You have to have a card-index system these days to keep up with the accusations of certain congressmen regarding Communists in the federal government.

Unfortunately the average citizen doesn't have time to keep a card index, so gets confused over harum-scarum Senator Joe McCarthy's recent accusation that there were 57 card-carrying Communists in the state department.

When the senator from Wisconsin finally was pinned down, he could produce not 57, but only four names of state department officials whom he claimed were Communists.

A careful scrutiny of these names is important. Of the four accused by McCarthy, one, Dr. Harlow Shapley, at no time worked for the state department. Two, Gustavo Duran and Mrs. Mary Jane Keeney, resigned four years ago; the fourth, John Service, was reinstated after a prolonged and careful investigation and after virtual apologies to him for ever questioning his loyalty. He is now serving with the most anti-Russian of all American diplomats, Loy Henderson, U. S. ambassador to India.

But there is even more interesting background behind Senator McCarthy's charges. Somewhat the same charges were made three years ago by another Republican, this one Congressman Bartel Jonkman of Michigan, just across the lake from McCarthy in Wisconsin.

On Feb. 26, 1947, Jonkman named two of the same alleged state department officials—Keeney and Duran—even though they were not then with the state department. Jonkman also hurled some accusations at Joseph Panuch, then deputy assistant secretary of state. Actually Panuch was the man who eased out Keeney and Duran, but Jonkman attacked him anyway.

As a result, Panuch sued Congressman Jonkman and the publisher of the Washington Times-Herald for libel. The suit against the Times-Herald publisher had to be dropped because of her death, but the congressman from Michigan compromised the suit with an official abject apology which stated: "It was not my intention to accuse you of lying or of any improper conduct in connection with your duties as deputy assistant secretary of state during your tenure of office." The congressman also paid Panuch's court costs and, incidentally, was defeated for re-election.

But now, after both the voters and Mr. Panuch took care of the Republican congressman from Michigan, almost exactly the same charges are shouted by the Republican senator from Wisconsin.

TRUMAN PREACHES

With Bible in hand, Baptist Harry Truman preached a sermon the other day to a dozen Methodist ministers. He started off by assuring: "Well, I am not going to preach a sermon."

Nevertheless he fingered through his Bible, read two chapters out of Isaiah, and upon this based his hope for the peace and happiness of the world.

"You said you didn't intend to preach a sermon, but you have actually preached an excellent sermon," responded Bishop J. Ralph Magee, head of the Methodist church in Illinois, when the president had finished. "I am sure that all the gentlemen present would be happy to have Harry Truman fill their pulpits any time he could find it possible," added Illinois' Sen. Scott Lucas, who had introduced the ministers at the White House.

This brought applause from the ministers. Truman went on to congratulate them for coming to Washington to study their government, and suggested that more people should visit the capital to study what the president and congress are up against.

"Mr. Lucas is carrying a very heavy load on the Hill, and it would be difficult for me to reach my objectives without his assistance," Truma added.

As a parting shot, the president reminded the visiting ministers that his primary theme in life is to bring peace to mankind.

INGRID'S BABY

On Capitol Hill, the big issues of the day are not always discussed on the floor of the senate, but in the senators' private restaurant. There, senators are franker than when their words are recorded by a stenographer for posterity to read.

But in the senate restaurant today, hottest topic is not Russia, China, nor surplus potatoes—but Ingrid Bergman's baby.

Virginia's Sen. Wiley Robertson is firm in the view that society must frown on Ingrid's illicit romance with director Roberto Rossellini and the majority agree. Privately, however, senators sympathize with Miss Bergman's right to live her own life.

"I guess they must have fallen crazy in love," mused Texas' elderly Sen. Tom Connally over his bean soup.

MRS. BARKLEY GAVELS

The most charming gavel-banger on Capitol Hill is now Mrs. Alben Barkley, or Madame Vice President.

While her husband presides over the senate, she presides over the senate ladies every Tuesday. They meet to roll bandages for the Red Cross, to plan an annual tea for the First Lady, or just to gossip.

Mrs. Barkley didn't go out and compete for the job of presiding officer; she married it. In fact, the news of this responsibility was broken rather coyly by none other than the vice president.

"Do you know anything about parliamentary procedure?" asked Barkley with feigned innocence.

"Heavens, why?" was the suspicious reply.

"Well, you are going to have to preside over the senate ladies," announced the vice president.

Mrs. Barkley thought is over for a minute, then replied: "Well, I've been in Red Cross groups for 15 years. We never needed any parliamentary procedure."

But just to be on the safe side, the vice president gave his wife a few easy lessons. Whether it was this or her own tact, the Second Lady has been a big hit as a presiding officer.

According to scientists, anger impairs the vision. No wonder people get so mad they can't see straight.

LUBRICARE

keeps your Buick livelier longer

JUST realize one thing, good madam, good sir—as you pilot your Buick down the highway past the parade of lesser cars, you're the secret envy of most other drivers.

So you owe it to this admiring audience to keep that wonderful Buick of yours purring at its proudest—gliding over the roughest roads like a car on a cloud, with never a squeak—lively, long-striding, and staying that way longer!

And one of the easiest ways to do that is to wheel into our shop once a month—ask the man for our LUBRICARE—and here's what will happen:

- 1 One of our trained Buick mechanics will lubricate your car as the factory engineers specify—covering many points never touched elsewhere.
- 2 While he goes over your Buick, he gives you an extra service only a Buick man can render. He inspects the entire car with a trained Buick eye—making sure you get lubrication plus Buick care.
- 3 When you get your bill, you'll find a wonderful surprise—our LUBRICARE costs no more than a routine "grease job" but, man alive, what a difference it makes!

PAVEMENT DRAMA—This striking picture was made in Detroit, after a traffic accident. A policeman peers underneath the street car at William Liebelt, 80, who lies pinned under the car suffering serious injuries. The car struck the man as he was crossing a street. By sheer manpower, passersby lifted the heavy street car to free the victim and allow his removal to a hospital.

THIS WILL BE A RELIEF TO YOU—Housewives who say they can't feed the family on what Pappy gives them to run the house can find food for thought in the recent experiment of Raymond M. Hilliard, New York City's $15,000-a-year welfare commissioner. Hilliard kept his own family of six on a food budget of $95.96 for a month. That's about 52 cents a day per person. If the family had really been on relief, they would have received $124.50. Hilliard conducted the experiment to justify a recent 7 per cent cut in individual relief food allowances. The family (except Hilliard's aunt) is shown sitting down to one of their "austerity" meals.

Citizen First In New Cities

Model Communities Are Being Planned

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Made-to-order, model cities are getting a new lift in the postwar world.

They have been the dream of social planners since crowded, haphazard industrial cities, with all their shortcomings, emerged as a product of the Machine Age, notes the National Geographic Society.

The destruction of World War II, population shifts from rural to urban areas, and the building lag of the last decade all are supplying impetus for construction of communities devoted first to the comfort and well-being of the citizen.

Today's model cities—rising in the United States, India, South America and Europe—are providing space for children and adults to play, in parks, stadia and community centers. Factories in modern dress are being tucked out of sight, away from landscaped residential areas; and shopping centers, churches and schools are being conveniently grouped for all.

Indian City Is Largest

In the U. S., city planners gained practical experience by creating the tailor-made atomic bomb centers of Oak Ridge, Tennessee; Richmond, Washington; and Los Alamos, New Mexico. The garden city of Forest Park, Illinois, laid out on a 3,500-acre site for 30,000 people, is only one of several American postwar towns under construction.

India has scheduled one of history's largest model cities in the projected construction of a capital for the province of East Punjab. On a bare Ganges valley plain 140 miles north of New Delhi, a city for 500,000 people is envisioned, complete with a government administrative unit, university township and industrial section.

Industrial City, an ultra-modern community for 5,000, is being constructed near Mexico City by a Mexican manufacturer, while Motor City—first community built under Brazil's new industrialization program—is expanding to accommodate 25,000 workers in the tractor and airplane engine industries.

England's Ministry of Town and Country Planning has started the development of five towns near London to take care of the big city's overflow of more than a quarter of a million people. They are Stevenage, Hemel Hempstead, Harlow, Crawley and Aylesbury.

Planned City Is Old

The planned city is hardly a newcomer on the world scene, although emphasis on beauty, comfort and health for the individual was rare until the 20th century. The Egyptian city of Kahun, built about 3,000 B. C. for workers constructing the Illahun pyramid, is among the first recorded examples of a planned city; but the small, crowded houses provided little more than bare shelter.

By 500 B. C. the planned city was not unusual in Asia Minor and Greece. It is, however, to the Roman military camp that most European and North American cities owe their straight lines and right-angle street systems.

Hanchow, Marco Polo's "first city in the world," was better planned in the Italian explorer's eyes than the European cities of his day, because these reflected the confusion in Western civilization following the fall of the Roman Empire. With the European Renaissance, when "Greece crossed the Alps," the dream of beauty in the city re-emerged to find dramatic expression eventually under Napoleon III with the clearing of Parisian slums for the city's magnificent boulevards.

Bombs Terrify Their Creators

Physicists Afraid Of Handiwork

By ROBERT C. RUARK

NEW YORK—The people are scared, now, scared spiltless. That includes coarse fellows like me, as well as the high-frequency scientists like Einstein, the pappy of the A-bomb and the granddaddy of this new playtoy, the hydrogen bomb.

This fright really isn't so tough to analyze. You can hear it hashed up any old evening in the corner bar and grill, in the living room, in the pool-parlor. The fear is founded on a stark realization that the whole thing's got out of hand—that you can't bet very soundly any more on your own individual luck to duck the hard ball into the bleachers.

Most of us sat in those bleachers, on occasion, and have seen people smitten on the head with a batted ball. In all my life no such ball ever dropped near me. I never caught one or ducked one. I carried this idea to London, during the blitz, and to other places where hard balls dropped from the skies. I found it comforting all the way.

Bombs splattered on the heads of people I knew, but it never occurred to me that I would field one with my scalp. Felt the same way about the potential employment of the atom bomb. If it hit New York, I would be in New Jersey. Or some other far place.

A flock of other people felt the same way. One of the best arguments in real-estate hawking around the Jersey, Connecticut, Pennsylvania area was placed on the pitch that the property was "out of the New York City atom area," a mythical subdivision embracing about 30 miles. They never said what would happen if the vaguely expected bomb dropped short or carried high, but they sold real estate, all the same, on a fright quotient.

Physicists Are Scared

With the imminence of manufacture of the hydrogen bomb, this head-in-hole security has been whisked away. It is very much, now, as if one explosive ball were to be batted into the bleachers for every occupant of every seat, including the standees, and all balls were to be batted simultaneously and constantly.

The physicists who have created this panic now peep over their bi-focals like a bunch of scared kids, afrighted at a fire they have lit and cannot quench. They whine about its danger to the community, and Doctor Einstein creeps out of his ivory tower long enough to mutter that the H-bomb may poison the atmosphere and murder the entire world. I am a bum chemist, but I know from high-school that if water is composed of H-two-O, then there is twice as much hydrogen as oxygen around, and there is a passel of oxygen around.

This fearful fellow, Fuchs, the German psychopath, confesses calmly that he and his split personality have been trading off Atom secrets to the Russians with the aplomb of a child swapping comic books behind the garage. The government has just issued a handy little report on the building of a semi-atom-proof love bower for every man. A neutron-proof breakfast nook, oh, boy!

Created Frankenstein

We have become hardened to the daily gabble and garble of the warriors and politicians, each serving his own fuzzy end. But when the high-domed folk who built these lethal contraptions rise and wring their hands, to a Wagnerian chorus of "what have we done?" I begin to twitch. When the government starts telling you how to atom-proof your bedroom, and old fuzzy-wuzzy crawls out of his sweater long enough to talk about killing off the world, then us non-scientific bystanders begin to buck and shy, like a spooked horse before a tumbleweed.

The sorcerers of wholesale death have admitted publicly that their monster has stricken off his shackles, and is loose in the fields. The common fear today is not so much that somebody will throw one of these super fire-crackers at us as that some domestic schizophrenic will mislay his glasses and blow us all to tophet in the interests of pure science.

The scientists have reached the point of not trusting their own wisdom or even the mathematical symbols of their craft, if Einstein's testimony is any good. They never were a practical set, at best, when it came to remembering to wear their rubbers and pay the butcher bill. So I, like a mess of other folk, am scared. I never licked calculus, and when the folks who did don't know what to do with it—well, unease can creep into the mind of anyone who likes to stay alive.

Ohio Youth Seeks Better Control Of Colorado Beetle

SYLVANIA, Ohio (SS) — A mixture of Paris green, lead arsenate, and lime gives the best control over adult Colorado potato beetles, is the conclusion of John Rippon, 17-year-old Sylvania high school senior, after studying the effect of nine different insect preparations.

The Colorado potato beetle is a serious agricultural pest, and Mr. Rippon set about discovering the best way to control it. He took a strip of land 50 by 15 feet and divided it into 10 equal patches. On one patch he studied the life history of the beetle and on the other nine he tested the effect of various insecticides.

He found that chemical control is most effective during the larval and adult stages. A mixture of pyrethrum and sesame oil paralyzed larvae but had little effect on adult beetles, while cryo-lite proved ineffective on both larvae and adults.

Although Paris green, when used alone, proved detrimental to the potato plants themselves, when mixed with lead arsenate and lime the preparation had no damaging effects on the plant, and it gave very good results against the beetles.

Mr. Rippon is president of the physics and chemistry clubs at Burnham High School here. He hopes to go to the University of Michigan to prepare for a career as a parasitologist.

Mrs. Tousignant attended her daughter's wedding in a gray dressmaker with blue accessories and Mrs. Hemes wore navy with white trim and navy accessories. Both mothers had a pink rubrum lily corsages.

Robert Hemes served as his brother's best man.

The bride's father and mother, long members of St. Ann's choir, took a prominent part in the musical program of the service. Mr. Tousignant was a soloist of the Holy Family Mass by Dethier with Elaine DeGrand, Lloyd Servant, Martin Van Donsel and Francis Laviolette, and Mrs. Tousignant sang Molitor's "Ave Maria" at the offertory. Immediately before the recessional as the couple knelt at the altar Sam Ham sang "On This Day." The traditional processional and recessional were played by Miss Bernadette Cossette, organist-director.

Spring flowers centered the appointments for the breakfast for 35 guests served in the private dining room of the Delta Hotel. A reception is being held this afternoon from 3 to 6 at the Tousignant home. Wedding bells with satin ribbons and cathedral tapers mark the archway of the living room, and spring flowers with tapers and the three tiered wedding cake with a tiny bridal couple topping are centering the table appointments. Presiding at the silver service is Mary Elizabeth Hibbard, and also assisting are Mrs. Sawdon who is serving the wedding cake and Mrs. J. C. Tittsworth of Gladstone.

The newlyweds, whose honeymoon destination is undisclosed, will live in Escanaba at 1315 Fifth avenue south. Both young people are graduates of Escanaba high school. The bride is with the Wilkinson Floor Coverings and Mr. Hemes is employed by the Wilson

LUDINGTON
BUY-LINES

by Sue Donimus

If you want to see that "cozy room" that the song writer sings about in "My Blue Heaven," just walk yourself down to the Home Supply Co. On display in the window this coming week is a fourteen piece living room set which will sell for only $169.95. You're dying to know what the fourteen pieces are, aren't you? The set includes a davenport and chair, occasional table, two end tables with a table lamp for each, a magazine rack, a shag rug, two sofa pillows, two pictures, and a wall shelf. The color scheme is variable—you may choose from red, green or blue. Be sure to do some window shopping this week at the Home Supply.

The first thing anyone does with a map or a geographical dictionary is to look up his own home town. Karl Dickson and I looked up Escanaba the other day in the new Webster's Geographical Dictionary at the Office Service Co. We found it, too. There were six lines telling all about us. This is just one of the 40,000 entries in this amazing book—a place dictionary of the world with 177 maps. There's no place like home to read about the rest of the world. Imagine how many questions can be answered (or arguments solved) with this knowledge. See it at OCSO soon!

Viva la compaignie! It's a sociable world, and now they are even bringing us companion pieces in yard goods! The finest Guild-bray woven chambrays can be seen on the third floor of the Fair Store in a plain rancho rose with a companion striped piece; also in a smart grey combination. These chambrays look new no matter how many times you wash them, and are only 89c a yard. It's national Sew and Save Week at the Fair Store beginning Monday and the women will be closing in to get these chambrays and also the bright Quadrage prints at only 49c a yard. Sew what? Head for the Fair Store and you'll see!

For that unexpected company I can usually find an assortment of crackers and cheese. They look twice as tempting and more like a party when they are served on a hand-painted wooden lazy-Susan. The Photo Art Shop has a new supply of lovely wooden plates. Among them are sandwich plates, salad sets, and a cute salt and pepper set (Salty and Peppy)—the latter only $1.95. I'd like some, wooden you?

A cartoon in a recent magazine has the dumb blonde looking at her gorgeous new diamond and saying to the boy friend, "I'll always treasure it—no matter what happens!" Well, the birthstone for the month of February is the amethyst, and I'll warrant if you give the little lady an amethyst ring, she'll really treasure it and nothing will happen! Garrard Jewelers has such a magnificent display of amethyst rings right now. Set in tasteful solid mountings, often just solitaire, or sometimes their purple beauty flanked with white sapphires or seed pearls, these amethysts recall the poet's words, "A thing of beauty is a joy forever." Nothing could be nicer for the February birthday girl than this lovely birthstone. Stop in to see them at Garrard's.

Columbus has nothing on me! You should see what I discovered this week at Eden's Gift shop. The most beautiful big silvery plate with an insert of brass in the center in the design of a compass. I thought it was silver or aluminum, yet its lustrous surface was not quite like either one of them. Mr. Eden put me right. This is a new metal called Kensington. Remarkably, it does not tarnish and is cleaned merely by washing with mild soap and drying. It is a handsome solid metal that won't scratch easily and resists stain. Kensington Ware comes in beautiful covered serving dishes, trays, salt and peppers, ash trays etc., and at a nice variety of prices. Mrs. Eden tells me one woman likes it so well, she gives it exclusively for wedding gifts. I think she has something there. See it yourself at Eden's.

A deuce or a joker is all I lack! Meld those Aces! Freeze the pack! If you understand that jargon, you're a Canasta fan, and I have news for you. Gust Asp has some clear plastic table covers with pockets to hold the melds in place (only $1.00). Better see these—they're the rage in the cities. Gust also has two Canasta rule books that are excellent; large one $1.75; smaller one, 50c. The revolving Canasta tray is a dandy and there are loads of good looking decks of cards. ($1.19). If you need some supplies for this popular game, you "canasta" Gust Asp for anything—he has it!

The Northport

Spacious Living with Host of Features

Rooms ..... Seven
Bedrooms ..... Four
Closets ..... Nine
Cubage
House ..... 23,500
Garage ..... 3,000
Overall Dimensions
Of House ..... 31' x 24'
With Garage ..... 43' x 24'

Although it will not interest a person looking for a small, low-cost home, "The Northport," today's design by The Home of the Week Plan Service, is a house that many figuring on building a four-bedroom dwelling will enthusiastically receive.

Overall dimensions, with the attached garage pictured, run to 43x24 feet for this house. Eliminating the garage wing with its low-sweeping roof leaves the main house measurements 31x24 feet. This means that the main dwelling could be placed on a lot having not more than 50-foot frontage. Cubage of the main house is 23,500 feet.

An asphalt shingled roof, of black or green, and white painted, clapboard walls will look well on this size and style of home. The shutters at door and windows would, naturally, be painted to blend with the roof's color.

Coat Closet Provided

A front-entry hall separates the living room and kitchen. The closed stairway to the second floor, running up from this hall, has a coat closet at one side.

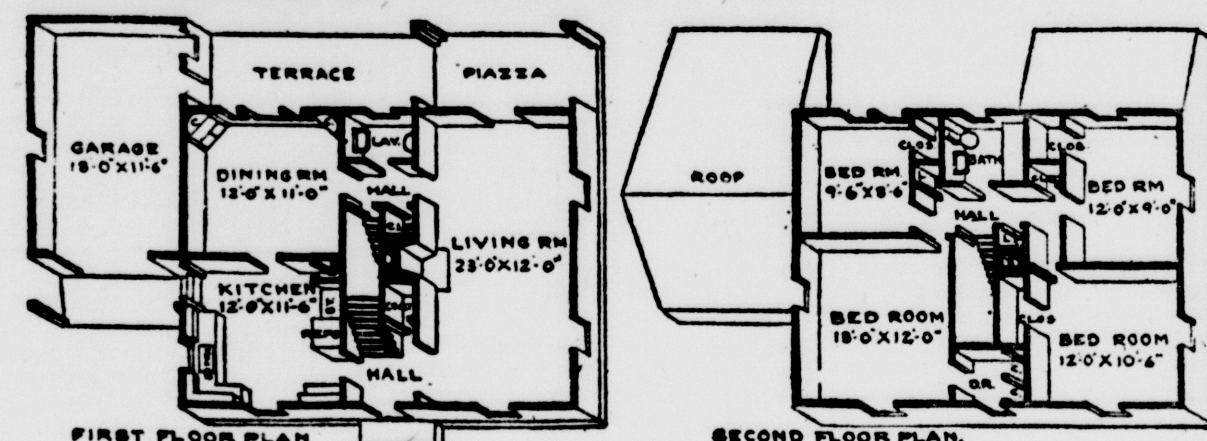

A large house such as The Northport would be expected to have a spacious living room. Floor measurements of 23x12 feet fulfill this expectation. Centered in the long inside wall of the living room is a flush type manteled fireplace. French doors at the far end of the room open to a piazza on the rear of the house. An archway on the left of the fireplace, opening on the front hall, is matched by a door, at the right, leading to a small rear corridor to the dining room. A lavette is at one side of this hall; on the opposite side a storage closet and a door shutting off the cellar stairway.

The 12x11-foot dining room is one of the most charming rooms in the house, made so by a large picture window flanked by small casement windows. Both room corners at either side of this window are filled by built-in china cabinets.

Across the room from the picture window, a two-way swinging door, connects with the kitchen, on the front of the house. This room, unlike the galley type kitchens found in most modern homes, is 12x11½ feet in size, with its equipment so placed as to leave the central floor area open. Two windows and a glazed service entry door make the kitchen a well lighted "workshop" for the housekeeper of the family.

All Bedrooms Open Off Hall

The second floor of The Northport has an L-shaped hall at the head of the stairs which connects with all rooms. There are three closets off this hall—one for bed linens, another for bathroom linens, the third, which could be cedar lined, for storage. The bathroom door is opposite the head of the stairs only a few steps from each of the four bedroom doors. The bedrooms are placed two on either side of the hall. If three bedrooms will prove sufficient, either of these pairs could be made into a single large master bedroom. A small dressing room with a double clothes closet is lighted by the central upstairs window on the front of the house.

The full cellar of The Northport would have the furnace installation under the rear hall of the first floor and laundry facilities installed under the kitchen. This would leave the entire area under the living room available for use as a recreation room. If desired, a fireplace could be installed here.

Insulation of second floor ceiling areas and sidewalls is recommended for this house. Hardwood floors are called for in all rooms except kitchen, lavatory and bath, where linoleum is used. Copper tubing for all water piping is called for in the specifications.

Complete plans and specifications for this "Home of the Week," or any other design of this series, are available at moderate cost. To ascertain the exact price of these documents, write to the Home Building Editor, Dept. 15, Daily Press and enclose a self-addressed envelope bearing a 3-cent stamp. At least one week should be allowed for a reply.

(Released by the Home of the Week Plan Service, Providence 6, R. I.)

WHAT PRICE LOT

Cost of land should represent not much more nor less than 20% of the total amount it is planned to spend on building a home, according to building industry economists. Thus, if a total expenditure of $15,000 is planned, the plot should not cost more than $3,000; the house $12,000.

Lasting Shiny Finish For Brass Or Copper

Want to clean your brass and copper fixtures, furnishings and ornaments, so the finish will last for years?

A veteran polisher of the building service squad at brass-framed Rockefeller Center gives this advice:

"Go down to your drug store and buy 15 cents worth of oxalic acid. Put the powder in a quart jar. Fill with water. Mix well. Dip your cleaning cloth into this mixture and then into some powdered pumice stone—you can get this at a drug store. Rub the cloth briskly over your metal, then wipe with a clean cloth. Your metal should gleam."

"Then dip another clean cloth into clear lacquer—make sure it is lacquer—and pat it over the metal's surface, covering it completely. Don't use a brush. "Now the finish should last three or more years . . . without polishing."

"Oh, yes," he adds, "when after years, the finish does become dull again, use a little paint remover to take off the old lacquer, and repeat the entire process."

Painting In Hot Sun Should Be Avoided

Painting in the direct rays of the hot sun should be avoided for the good of the paint job as well as the comfort of the painter. Work on the outside of a house can be laid out so that the painter follows the movement of the sun.

If the house faces east the painter should start as early in the morning as possible on the west side, doing the east at a later hour. Early afternoon is the best time for working on the north side while the south side should be done late in the afternoon.

Paint of course, should never be applied to surfaces where night air has condensed and left a temporary film of moisture.

Tiny Light Switches On When Fuse Blows Out

The hunt for that fuse that just blew out is eliminated by one of those simple twists of electrical science. A tiny incandescent lamp has been added to the fuse. Now, when the fuse goes out, the lamp goes on.

PROPER WINDOW SIZE

When the modernization of a house is contemplated, the size of the windows is a point to be considered. Small windows, unless they are on the sunny side of the house, are often inadequate for the proper lighting of a room. Small panes of glass in the sash are also less efficient than a window with single or double panes.

Died Recently
In Florida City

Albert Boynton, age 85, a brother of Mrs. John I. Bellaire of Manistique, died Friday a week ago at New Smyrna Beach, Florida following a several years illness.

Mr. Boynton was a son of the late Capt. L. R. Boynton, noted sea captain, and followed his father's line of work for years, sailing on the Great Lakes and for many years being employed with the ferry service between Mackinaw City and St. Ignace. Retiring from the service he moved to Florida where he resided for many years.

Active in the Masonic lodge, members of the order conducted rites at the graveside at New Smyrna Beach.

Stoker Coal
About GoneSupply Of Lump Coal
Declared Satisfactory

A serious shortage of stoker coal is facing users of that commodity in Manistique.

John Girvin, local coal dealer, announced that a survey of the situation reveals that the supply of lump coal in the city is very satisfactory, but the supply of the stoker variety is quite the reverse.

There are less than fifty tons of stoker coal available from local yards at this time, says Girvin. All attempts to augment the supply have been unavailing and under the present circumstances it is not likely that any more may be obtained for some time to come.

At the request of local dealers, H. W. Heideman, city manager has wired a message to Gov. Meritt Williams asking his aid in obtaining the badly needed fuel for stoker type furnaces.

Most furnaces, particularly the type used in homes, can use lump coal if shoveled by hand but this is not satisfactory when installations of stokers have been made. Girvin stated that there are no facilities at hand locally at present for the crushing of lump coal.

Threat Of Higher Taxes
Is Deplored At Public
Gathering Thursday Night

Recent action by the Schoolcraft county board of supervisors setting valuations for purposes of taxation at 20 per cent of their actual value was declared by J. Joseph Herbert, at a public meeting at the court house Thursday evening, to be seriously against the best interests of the taxpayers and of the county.

The meeting at which Mr. Herbert spoke had been arranged for by the Manistique-Schoolcraft Chamber of Commerce and was called to order by Len Harbick, president of that organization.

Mr. Herbert explained that by using 80 per cent of the valuations recently set by the state tax commission, the supervisors would be empowered to raise revenue far in excess of the county's needs. Such a situation, he said, is definitely not in the public interest. It would lay the way open for inexcusable extravagance which would raise taxes and create needless hardship.

He said that by fixing valuations on a 66 per cent basis, revenue ample for the needs of the county could be raised.

In order to clarify the situation for his hearers, the speaker explained that the state law places a limit on the county tax rate of 15 mills, prorated on a basis of 9.5 mills for county purposes and 5.5 for schools.

Heretofore, he explained, levies based on valuations of assessors afforded sufficient revenue to run the county. But last year, due to increase in costs and an unprecedented increase in relief and welfare demands, the 15 mill levy, based on such valuations, could not raise sufficient funds. Last fall the state tax commission was appealed to in an effort to find a way out of the dilemma. In compliance with the call for assistance, representatives of the state tax commission made a spot check of the county and on the basis of this check, put valuations on a 100 per cent basis and set the assessed valuation of the county at $13,832,143.00. The total assessed valuation prior to this was $7,612,415.00 or an increase of $6,219,728.00.

At a recent meeting of the supervisors that body voted to fix equalizations at 80 per cent as a basis for taxation. As a result the supervisors could base their tax rate on a total valuation of $11,065,714.00. This is an increase over last year's roll of almost 50 per cent and would place the supervisors in a position to increase taxes correspondingly.

Mr. Herbert said that he did not think that the present board would set a 15 mill rate on an 80 per cent valuation, but he added that the situation created would be a source of temptation and such leeway could not be wholeheartedly.

Using 66 per cent of the state tax commission's valuations as a basis would provide adequate funds to meet current expenses, said the speaker. On that basis a 9.5 mill levy for the county would produce $86,727.00 and a 5.5 mill levy for the county would raise $50,210.00 or a total of $136,937.00. This he said, was well over the amount required to meet last year's needs and would adequately meet this year's requirements.

Taxes are high enough now, he said, and any increase would not only work a hardship on the taxpayer of modest means, but would also, most certainly, scare out prospective industry. He added, in conclusion, that not another Michigan county, with the possible exception of Wayne, uses such a high valuation basis as that recently adopted by the Schoolcraft county board of supervisors.

Agner Dehlin, Hiawatha township supervisor, announced that there would be a meeting of assessors at the court house next Monday evening. He did not enlarge on the purpose of the gathering.

This coming week we observe the 218th birthday of George Washington, father of our country. It was largely through his wise council that the foundations of this nation were laid. pliance with the call for assistance, representatives of the state tax commission made a spot check of the county and on the basis of this check, put valuations on a 100 per cent basis and set the assessed valuation of the county at $13,832,143.00. The total assessed valuation prior to this was $7,612,415.00 or an increase of $6,219,728.00.

At a recent meeting of the supervisors that body voted to fix equalizations at 80 per cent as a basis for taxation. As a result the supervisors could base their tax rate on a total valuation of $11,065,714.00. This is an increase over last year's roll of almost 50 per cent and would place the supervisors in a position to increase taxes correspondingly.

Mr. Herbert said that he did not think that the present board would set a 15 mill rate on an 80 per cent valuation, but he added that the situation created would be a source of temptation and such leeway could not be wholeheartedly.

Using 66 per cent of the state tax commission's valuations as a basis would provide adequate funds to meet current expenses, said the speaker. On that basis a 9.5 mill levy for the county would produce $86,727.00 and a 5.5 mill levy for the county would raise $50,210.00 or a total of $136,937.00. This he said, was well over the amount required to meet last year's needs and would adequately meet this year's requirements.

Taxes are high enough now, he said, and any increase would not only work a hardship on the taxpayer of modest means, but would also, most certainly, scare out prospective industry. He added, in conclusion, that not another Michigan county, with the possible exception of Wayne, uses such a high valuation basis as that recently adopted by the Schoolcraft county board of supervisors.

Agner Dehlin, Hiawatha township supervisor, announced that there would be a meeting of assessors at the court house next Monday evening. He did not enlarge on the purpose of the gathering.

Gladstone

Creten Paves The Way With 21 Counters

GLADSTONE—A red-hot band of Gladstone Braves, led by towering Phil Creten who got 21 points, scalped the highly touted Marquette Redmen, 56-35, in a classy cage game before a capacity crowd here last evening.

The Braves were behind 2-0 in the first minute but quickly tied and went out in front and except for part of the 2nd quarter kept command the entire way. They led 16-8 at quarter time but slumped a bit in the second quarter when Marquette came back to outscore them 12-9 and the half-time margin was 25-20.

The Graverats narrowed the count to a 4-point margin in the third period but Gladstone turned on the heat again and dropped in 15 points to Marquette's 8 in the 3rd quarter and 16 to Marquette's 7 in the final period.

Phil Creten paced the victors with eight field goals and five free throws for 21 points and was ably assisted by Tich Swenson who got 3 and 6 for 12 points, Larry LaPlant who got 10 points and Billy Rajala who got 8.

Deadly in their scoring, the Braves garnered 17 field goals and 22 free throws, missing only 7. Swenson got 6 charity tosses without a miss while Rajala and LaPlant each got four with no misses. Their defense, too, was almost on a par with their offense. Floor work and ball handling was greatly improved over their last previous home game.

In a preliminary between the Central eighth graders and the All Saints eighth graders, the former were victorious, 22-14.

Spartans Drub Wayne, 68-44

Ranguette Makes 1st Appearance

EAST LANSING, Mich.—(P)—Michigan State's basket shooters bade farewell to the home court by administering a 68-44 lacing to Wayne university last night.

The Spartans' victory gave them their longest win streak of the season—two games. It was their fourth triumph against 16 defeats.

Bill Ranguette sank 16 points and Danny Smith 14 to do the most damage in Wayne's 13th loss against five victories. Bob Ranguette, of Escanaba, made his first varsity appearance with MSC.

It was the 14th time in 15 games that Wayne has bowed to MSC. The ineffectual Tartars scored one field goal in the first minute of play and didn't do it again for another 12 minutes.

With a 21-point lead in the second half Michigan State sent in a flock of reserves.

COOKS—The Cooks Clippers gave the Rapid River Rockets a lot to think about in a rip-roaring Central U. P. Basketball league game here last night but in the end a strong defending champion Rocket team prevailed, 55-48.

Ishpeming Vets Enters U. P. Tourney Here

Independent Cagers Tee Off Next Tuesday

The big news on the independent basketball front is the entry of the Ishpeming VFW in the U. P. Open basketball tournament here next Tuesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights. The Ishpeming Vets are generally considered the strongest quintet in the Upper Peninsula and their participation assures fans of a strong Class A bracket which will be rounded out by the Shamrocks, Escanaba VFW, and Munising.

The B bracket promises to be one of the strongest in years with the following fives already entered: Cloverland College, Groos Drug, Gladstone Lions, Manistique Legion, Trenary Merchants, and Cooks Bombers. Cloverland College is the defending champion in Class B while last year's A winners were the Shamrocks, playing under the banner of the Della Hardware.

Action in the local city leagues the past week finds the Shamrocks in secure possession of first place in the fast circuit but a hot battle for second place has developed between Cloverland College and the Vets. Harnischfeger took a long stride toward the B championship by handing Powers a convincing 3 to 3 defeat. The Harnies turned the trick by simply playing better, all-around basketball. Sam Schram had one of his best nights of the season by scoring 21 points, 14 in the second quarter alone.

COOKS—The Cooks Clippers gave the Rapid River Rockets a lot to think about in a rip-roaring Central U. P. Basketball league game here last night but in the end a strong defending champion Rocket team prevailed, 55-48.

It was a big third period that did it for the champions. Rapid River led by only 14-13 at the quarter and 26-25 at the half but it forged into a 42-35 third quarter lead.

Ishpeming Vets Enters U. P. Tourney Here

Independent Cagers Tee Off Next Tuesday

The big news on the independent basketball front is the entry of the Ishpeming VFW in the U. P. Open basketball tournament here next Tuesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights. The Ishpeming Vets are generally considered the strongest quintet in the Upper Peninsula and their participation assures fans of a strong Class A bracket which will be rounded out by the Shamrocks, Escanaba VFW, and Munising.

The B bracket promises to be one of the strongest in years with the following fives already entered: Cloverland College, Groos Drug, Gladstone Lions, Manistique Legion, Trenary Merchants, and Cooks Bombers. Cloverland College is the defending champion in Class B while last year's A winners were the Shamrocks, playing under the banner of the Della Hardware.

Action in the local city leagues the past week finds the Shamrocks in secure possession of first place in the fast circuit but a hot battle for second place has developed between Cloverland College and the Vets. Harnischfeger took a long stride toward the B championship by handing Powers a convincing 3 to 3 defeat. The Harnies turned the trick by simply playing better, all-around basketball. Sam Schram had one of his best nights of the season by scoring 21 points, 14 in the second quarter alone.

It was the 14th time in 15 games that Wayne has bowed to MSC. The ineffectual Tartars scored one field goal in the first minute of play and didn't do it again for another 12 minutes.

With a 21-point lead in the second half Michigan State sent in a flock of reserves.

Men's Downhill At Aspen Today

ASPEN, Colo.—(P)—The men's downhill race, in which dare-devil ski riders abandon caution and strain for maximum speed, will bring a spectacular climax to the 1950 World ski championships today.

Sixty-one contestants from 13 nations are scheduled to make the perilous 2.1-mile run down the icy north face of Aspen mountain. They must steer a true course through 10 control gates while descending 2,400 feet closer to sea level.

Trude Reiser-Jochum won the women's downhill title yesterday to give Austrian girls a grand slam of the Alpine events. Previously, Dagmar Rom of Austria had taken the slalom and giant slalom.

Three falls were reported in the women's downhill, one of which sent Canada's Margaret Owen to a hospital suffering from shock and a sprained ankle. She took a bad tumble at a spot known here as "the point of no return." Jacqueline Martel of France and Olivia Ausoni of Switzerland also spilled and failed to finish.

With 10 of 11 events completed in the 1950 championships, the Associated Press tabulations give Austria—thanks to its graceful girls—the lead in the race for the team title. Sweden is a close second and Norway third.

Austria has compiled all of its points in the Alpine events here, with the girls accounting for a great majority of them. Women did not compete in the earlier Nordic events at Lake Placid, N.Y., and Rumford, Me.

Kids Read Comic
Per Day, Teenager Finds In Survey

BROOKLYN, (SS) — School kids from the fifth to eight grades average better than a comic book a day, says 17-year-old Stanley Korenman, who has just completed a study of the reading habits of 774 grade schoolers who own a total of 28,500 comic books or an average of 44 each.

Mr. Korenman, a senior at Brooklyn's Abraham Lincoln High School, came up with several other statistics in the independent survey which helped to qualify him as one of the 40 finalists in the nationwide Science Talent Search.

He found that library book reading drops off much less slowly than comic book reading as the children get older for the very good reason that it doesn't have as far to fall. While the children are reading an average of more than seven comics a week, even the library card-holders are averaging a bit less than four books a month.

Mr. Korenman, whose scientific interests range from mathematics and physics to biology and social science, hopes to go to Princeton in preparation for a career as a research physicist.

The staple food of big and little fish is plankton, a great variety of plants and animals carried by tides and currents.

Kids Read Comic
Per Day, Teenager Finds In Survey

BROOKLYN, (SS) — School kids from the fifth to eight grades average better than a comic book a day, says 17-year-old Stanley Korenman, who has just completed a study of the reading habits of 774 grade schoolers who own a total of 28,500 comic books or an average of 44 each.

Mr. Korenman, a senior at Brooklyn's Abraham Lincoln High School, came up with several other statistics in the independent survey which helped to qualify him as one of the 40 finalists in the nationwide Science Talent Search.

He found that library book reading drops off much less slowly than comic book reading as the children get older for the very good reason that it doesn't have as far to fall. While the children are reading an average of more than seven comics a week, even the library card-holders are averaging a bit less than four books a month.

Mr. Korenman, whose scientific interests range from mathematics and physics to biology and social science, hopes to go to Princeton in preparation for a career as a research physicist.

Wisconsin Central To Meet With Escanaba Officials Here Next Thursday Evening

In order to expedite the start of Wisconsin Central's air mail, passenger and freight service to Escanaba, connecting with a Milwaukee and Chicago link that includes Houghton, Iron Mountain, Menominee and Marquette, officials of W-C will meet with local officials at the House of Ludington at 6:30 next Thursday evening.

City authorities and members of the airport committee of the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce will meet with Wisconsin Central representatives to discuss an immediate program of development at the Escanaba municipal airport to meet Civil Aeronautics Authority regulations.

Before the local airport can be used by a federally-financed air carrier, it must meet strict federal requirements. Local authorities report that everything possible will be done to cooperate with W-C to expedite inauguration of service here.

The city currently is served by Nationwide Airlines in intrastate service but Nationwide is not authorized to carry mail. Wisconsin Central is authorized to carry mail in inter-state service.

Announcement of the approval of the Escanaba airport, pending necessary communication, safety and convenience improvements, was made during the recent CAB hearing in Marquette. At that time, President Francis M. Higgins, of Wisconsin Central, told an ESCANABA DAILY PRESS reporter that his company should be ready to start service here by April 1, 1950.

Mr. Higgins' letter to A. V. Aronson, Escanaba city manager, follows:

"We are pleased to advise you that our Board of Directors, last Thursday, authorized the inauguration of scheduled airline service by our Airline to your city at the earliest practical date.

"As you have been previously advised, the Air Carrier Division of the Civil Aeronautics Administration would not approve your airport for scheduled airline operations when we inaugurated service to the other cities in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan on December 1 of last year. We now have a communication from CAA, stating that operations may be started under certain operating restrictions due to the limitations of your airport.

"In order to expedite the inauguration of airline service to your city we would like to meet with you and others who may wish to call to such a meeting, as soon as possible . . ."

Ohio Bank Cashier Steals $102,000, Says It Was Living Hell

COLUMBUS, O.—(P)—Damon Grow, for years respected Jackson, O., bank cashier now accused of embezzling $102,000, says he went through "15 years of living hell."

The mild-mannered, soft-spoken Jackson civic leader explained he had been employed by the First National bank as a $91-a-month clerk for two years when his first son was born.

"I couldn't pay all the bills as they piled up," Grow said. "I had to get money so I took some and fixed the records. Nothing happened."

Years went by. Grow became father of two more sons. His standing in the community grew, too.

He became a school board member and in 1931 he became cashier of the Jackson bank. A few years later, with the total of his pilfering mounting, the strain began to tell. More and more, Grow hated the continual borrowing.

Words can't express the last 15 years of living hell. "I've gone through," he said. "I wanted to quit doing it."

HALF-CENTURY HIGHLIGHTS

MOST FAMOUS FIVE children in the world were the Dionne quintuplets—Cecile, Marie, Annette, Yvonne and Emilie—born May 28, 1934, in the little French-Canadian town of Callander, Ont. Here they cluster around Dr. Allan R. Dafoe, the country doctor who brought them into the world and who gave eight years of his life to keeping them alive and healthy. For years the quints lived in their own unique nursery and enclosed recreation grounds. A special one-way-vision glass separated them from the public, enabling them to be seen without seeing the curious throngs that came from all over the world. Since their births hit front pages almost 16 years ago, an adoring public has followed their growth, largely through newspaper and magazine pictures and stories.

Wonder Drugs Fight Mastitis

War Against Cattle
Disease Being Won

By MORTON STARK

NEW YORK, (SS).—The battle against mastitis, the udder infection of dairy cattle that puts a serious crimp in the annual milk output, is slowly being won.

The weapons that insure that this costly ailment will in the near future be reduced to economic unimportance are the antibiotic drugs, penicillin, aureomycin and streptomycin, coupled with the wider spread of hygienic practices.

This prediction was made by a visiting British veterinary expert, Dr. Samuel J. Edwards, a senior member of the Agricultural Research Council's field station at Compton, in Berkshire, England. Dr. Edwards is winding up a three-month study of American dairymaking under the auspices of the Economic Cooperation Administration.

What is needed to eliminate mastitis once and for all, both in this country and in Great Britain, said Dr. Edwards, is to get all dairy farmers to apply routinely the knowledge of how the disease spreads.

Specifically, he said, this refers to the practice of "hand stripping," that is the custom of hand milking the last drop of milk after the cow has been machine milked. Because the hand can not be disinfected as thoroughly or as dependably as the machine, hand stripping results in the spread of the disease from one cow to another.

On the other hand, exclusive use of milking machines plus a scrupulous disinfection of the machine before and after each cow, cuts down the threat of transmission to a minimum. Machines are used in over 95 per cent of all large herds in Britain, he said, and the percentage is similarly high in the United States.

"I was much impressed with the fact that students in this country have a splendid opportunity to see dairy management of the first class at the state agricultural colleges," Dr. Edwards said. His tour of the United States has taken him to the leading agricultural colleges in the East, Midwest and California, as well as government experiment stations, and the National Live Stock Exposition at Chicago.

Dr. Edwards, a fellow of the Royal College of Veterinarians, has been making his mastitis study under an ECA technical assistance project. He arrived in the United States Nov. 21 and he returned to England, Feb. 15.

These auto life expectancy figures have been compiled by W. L. Aiken, automotive engineer at SKF Industries, here.

In 1925 the average auto had an average life span of about six years and 25,750 miles. The car of 1935 had a life expectancy of over eight years and a probable 58,000 miles.

Cars last longer now because: Metals are lighter, stronger and more durable, due to alloys. Engines are better balanced because the sizes and weights of parts within assemblies are precision matched.

Wear is substantially reduced by anti-friction bearings that keep moving parts in better alignment.

Life Expectancy
Of Family Auto
Is Now 12 Years

PHILADELPHIA—The family car of today has a probable life of 12 years of service. It will have 103,000 miles behind it before it reaches the junk yard.

Hundreds Of Mules
Burn Up In Atlanta

ATLANTA—(P)—Between 350 and 400 mules were burned to death early today in a fire that gutted the building occupied by the National Stockyards Commission company.

Courtney Hall, one of the owners of the company, said the animals were valued at about $80,000. He said the building represented a 160,000 loss.

About 50 mules were led to safety, Hall said. The animals housed in the building were owned by about 10 dealers. The cause of the fire was unknown.

H-Bomb Would Destroy Cities

Scientist Believes
Russia Has Edge

By WADSWORTH LIKELY
WASHINGTON (SS).—In case of H-bomb attacks on the U. S. we shall have to write off most of the big cities in the country. This is the opinion of Dr. Ralph E. Lapp, who worked on the atom bomb during the war and who since has headed the Nuclear Physics Branch of the Office of Naval Research.

"Horrible as it may sound," he said, "we must be prepared to lose 10 to 15,000,000 people in the first day of the superblitz."

Because of the many American cities with large concentrations of population in contrast to the very few large centers of population in Russia, Dr. Lapp thinks that the H-bomb will be much more dangerous to us than to the Soviet Union.

An H-bomb is likely to produce a one-million ton equivalent TNT explosion, Dr. Lapp figures. "If we look in Russia for targets compatible with a one-million ton explosive we find that only one city qualifies. That is Moscow."

On all other Russian targets, Dr. Lapp said, "it might be more feasible to use the explosive force of an improved A-bomb."

"Even a casual inspection of American cities," Dr. Lapp pointed out, "reveals that we have far more compatible targets than Russia. In a certain sense we are rather like the man who lives in a fan paper shack and develops a flame thrower to protect himself."

Dr. Lapp noted that close to 20,000,000 people live in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit and Los Angeles. "There is very little we can do about those cities, except to stop them from getting any worse."

As for Washington, Dr. Lapp declared that "no one will ever be able to convince industry that it should disperse or civilians that they should limit the size of the cities, if nothing is done about the overcentralization of government agencies."

He recommended as a first step that the Navy move out of Washington and that many branches of the Army and Air Force move out of the Pentagon. "The Pentagon should be drastically cleaned out. The space can be used for dead records."

Student At Albion
Missing; Car Found
In Kalamazoo River

BATTLE CREEK, Mich.—(P)—An Albion college student was sought today after his car was found in the flooded Kalamazoo river here.

The car was registered under the name of Donald L. Sieg, 18, of Dearborn. It was found nearly submerged at 1:21 a. m., but no one was in it.

Sieg, a freshman, was reported last seen on the campus at Albion yesterday afternoon. His roommate, Elwood Bender of (Route 3) Shelby said Sieg had not returned this morning. Sieg had not checked out for the weekend or left word he was going any place.

Sieg is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis W. Sieg of Dearborn.

State police got in touch with Albion college officials after finding letters in the glove compartment of the car addressed to Sieg and Bender.

Police said the car plunged into the river where the current is swift.

Add leftover cooked rice to slightly beaten egg, season with salt and pepper, and drop by spoonfuls on a hot, well-greased griddle. Serve these rice griddle cakes with crisp bacon and currant jelly, and a green salad, for luncheon.

The right way to slice the turkey drumstick meat is to hold the drumstick at an angle, or upright, and cut down—parallel with the bone—turning to get uniform slices.

Rich in food value is a sandwich made of baked beans mixed with chopped nuts. For extra texture and flavor add a little prepared mustard and some finely chopped celery.

Collision Wrecks Train, Kills 29 And Injures 100

had crowded into the forward cars. All the dead and injured were from the metropolitan area.

Kiefer was injured—but not critically—and a police guard was placed at his home until he could be moved to the county jail for arraignment. Later, a doctor said Kiefer suffered a possible brain concussion and could not be questioned for at least 72 hours.

Screaming victims were mashed beneath tons of twisted metal as the trains came together with a crash heard for half a mile.

Doctors hacked and sawed off arms and legs to free some of the injured.

"An eastbound electric passenger train ran by a stop signal," was the official explanation of the Long Island railroad for what was believed to be the worst accident in its 116 years.

It was the nation's worst train wreck since 45 persons died April 25, 1946, at Naperville, Ill.

Thousands of awed but curious spectators flocked to the scene while the desperate cries of trapped victims still echoed on the night air.

An estimated 1,000 passengers were on the two trains when they collided at 10:38 p. m. (EST).

Rockville Centre, a community of about 20,000, is 20 miles east of Manhattan Island on the south shore of Long Island in Nassau county.

The accident occurred on a makeshift section of track during a months-long grade separation construction job.

Tough On Doctors
Every available doctor in the area was called to the scene.

More than 50 responded and relayed the injured into nearly a score of ambulances for transfer to hospitals in and around Rockville Centre. One doctor cut off a man's mangled arm to get him out of the debris. Another sawed off both legs of a trapped Negro passenger.

Many of the victims screamed and prayed—in pain and fright. Others lay dead, twisted like rag dolls, their bodies broken in the split-second impact of grinding steel.

"Kill me, please kill me," one man pleaded to rescuers.

Another woman, tons of metal crushing her chest, screamed: "Get the weight off me."

A white-faced, heart-sick rescue worker looked up at newsmen and gritted through clenched teeth:

"We're not taking out bodies, we're taking out parts of bodies."

Floodlights played on the wreckage as rescue workers used acetylene torches, axes and crowbars to pry into the twisted coaches of the two 10-car electric trains.

Finally, railroad wreckers bulldozed their way in to jerk apart the lead coaches so the hunt for bodies could go on.

A little white stucco Negro church stood a few feet from the scene. First bodies recovered were laid on its lawn.

Then the pitiful row of corpses began to grow. So the interior of the church was converted into a morgue and the remains moved

D. Roosevelt, Justice Felix Frankfurter, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, Gen. George Marshall, Cordell Hull, Charles (not Thomas) Edison.

Commercial autograph catalogues list the following prices: George Washington—$185; William Faulkner—$45; John Philip Sousa—$12.50; Woodrow Wilson—$6.50; Sinclair Lewis—$10.
